It's The Life

Bill Curry

Bill Curry was humming to himself as he watered the lawn. It was that old song "California Dreaming." For Bill it was all too apt. Only a few weeks ago he'd been freezing in Chicago. On a whim he'd packed and moved to Los Angeles. He'd had little trouble finding a job. His expertise as a gardener was in demand on the West Coast. He was very happy about that. He was even more happy with all the good-looking, young guys who seemed to be everywhere in L.A. In no time Bill had a full body tan and started to blend right in with all the others in days and nights filled with fast sex. But, deep inside Bill knew the one thing he was really searching for was love.

Bill Curry

The rush of the life, it's open-everything's-okay style was hard to adjust to at first for Georgio Canali. Things were so much more hush-hush in Europe. When he'd first come to L.A., he was like a kid in a candy store . . . out every night with a different young stud. He had to admit he liked it but at the same time sex-for-sex tricks were starting to get him down. True, it still gave him a thrill when he knew a really nice-looking guy was turned on by his hung handsomeness. But the edge was gone. Georgio knew all too well he was ready for a serious love affair.
